

THE PROPEL PERSPECTIVE

JULY 2026

WHERE POTENTIAL MEETS OPPORTUNITY

Once a PROPELIAN, Always a PROPELIAN...

There is a moment that happens at PROPEL that is hard to explain until you've seen it for yourself.

A student who walked through our doors years ago walks back in... not because they have to, but because something in them knows this place matters. A community partner who showed up once shows up again. A sibling follows a sibling. A coach who was once mentored becomes the mentor. A sponsor's name on a banner belongs to someone whose own family grew up inside these walls.

That is not coincidence. That is not luck.

That is the PROPEL Circle.

It is the living proof that what we do here doesn't stop when a student graduates, when a program ends or when a school year closes. The relationships built inside PROPEL have a way of coming back around... deeper, stronger and more purposeful than before. Students become leaders. Leaders become coaches. Partners become family. And family keeps showing up.

This May, we celebrated our graduating class of 20 PROPELIANS stepping boldly into colleges, universities, trade programs and military service, carrying with them scholarships, skills, confidence and the unshakeable knowledge that they are supported. We celebrate alumni who are out in the world doing extraordinary things and still making time to come back and show the next generation what is possible. We celebrate the community partners, donors, foundations and champions who keep this circle moving - because they understand that investing in young people is never a one-time gift. It is a legacy.

Also this May our community paddled their hearts out at our 2nd Annual Pickleball Tournament to keep this mission moving forward.

And if you haven't seen it yet — Sam Kerrigan from CBS12 stopped by to capture what the PROPEL Circle looks like in real life.

Twenty students. Twenty Pathways. One PROPEL family cheering every single one of them Forward.

Every year, we watch something remarkable happen. Students who came to us uncertain, searching, still figuring out who they are — walk across a stage and into their future with their heads high and their path clear. This year, we had the privilege of watching 20 of them do exactly that.

The PROPEL Class of 2026 is heading to four-year universities, trade programs and military service. They are carrying with them more than diplomas. They are carrying years of mentorship, relationship, belief and preparation. And thanks to the extraordinary generosity of our scholarship partners, they are carrying funding that will help make their dreams a reality.

Through the George Snow Scholarship Fund, the Viner Foundation and the James and Marta Batmasian Foundation — whose scholarship is dedicated exclusively to PROPEL students — this class secured more than $125,000 in scholarships and Florida Prepaid College Plans, with additional financial aid and funding secured through the college application process PROPEL supported each student through. These are not just dollar amounts. They are open doors.

We are deeply grateful to every foundation and donor who saw these students and said yes.

Gibril King, Frahima Adrien, Omar Gayle, Chelsey Joseph, Tristan Sejour, Jayla McLaughlin, Kristin & Drew

None of this happens by accident. Behind every application, every essay and every scholarship submission was a process... and that process had a guide. Coach Gibril King, PROPEL Class of 2023, came back to pour into this senior class the same way people poured into him. He sat with them, pushed them, celebrated them and refused to let them settle for anything less than what they deserved. Gibril didn't just help 20 students get to the finish line. He showed them what the PROPEL Circle looks like up close - a graduate who came back, on purpose, to make the Pathway a little clearer for the ones coming behind him.

Once a PROPELIAN, always a PROPELIAN!

The Stories Behind the Caps and Gowns

Every graduate carries a story worth telling. Twenty students. Twenty paths. Here is one that need to be said out loud.

Tristan Sejour - University of South Florida : Forensic Science

James & Marta Batmasian Foundation Scholar | Frederick A. DeLuca Foundation Scholar

There are students who come through a program.

And then there are students who become part of it.

Tristan Sejour is the second kind.

He walked into PROPEL as a freshman... uncertain and still figuring out where he fit in the world. What happened over the next four years is the kind of story that reminds you exactly why this work matters. Tristan didn't just grow inside PROPEL. He became one of its finest examples.

Academically, he was relentless. A 4.0+ GPA. Honor roll every single quarter of his entire high school career. Not once, not occasionally, but every single time. He took rigorous courses year after year and never fell behind. Not once.

On the track, he was a force. Captain of his school's track team, district champion, regional competitor - running hurdles and triple jump with the same focused energy he brought to everything else in his life. On the football field, he stepped onto the varsity team his junior year and became a key player, lifting up the underclassmen around him the same way he lifted up younger PROPELIANS.

In NJROTC, he earned medal after medal - Basic Leadership Training ribbon, Iron Man Medal, Distinguished Unit ribbon, Gold Physical Training ribbon, Exemplary Conduct ribbon and Outstanding Appearance ribbon. He didn't just participate in the program. He excelled in it, deepening his understanding of leadership, naval sciences and what it means to show up with discipline and character every single day.

And through all of it... the academics, the athletics, the service, he showed up three days a week at Publix, where for three years he has been exactly what everyone who knows Tristan would expect: dependable, respectful and always willing to do whatever needs to be done.

This past summer Tristan stepped into a counselor role in our youth program - and something shifted. The student became the guide. He showed up every single day with energy, patience and purpose, mentoring younger students, leading group activities and making every child feel seen and supported. That ability to make someone feel seen, that is not a skill you can teach. That is character. And Tristan has it in abundance.

He is heading to the University of South Florida to study Forensic Science - a field that demands precision, integrity and an unrelenting pursuit of truth. It fits him perfectly.

The Stories Behind the Caps and Gowns

Tristan Sejour - University of South Florida : Forensic Science ~ Cont'd

But before we send him off, we want to let Tristan speak for himself. Because nobody says it better:

"Joining PROPEL freshman year changed my life in ways I never expected. When I first joined, I had no friends and was still trying to find where I belonged, but PROPEL gave me a place where I immediately felt welcomed and supported. Through all the opportunities, experiences, and memories that PROPEL provided, I was able to grow both as a student and as a person. I met lifelong friends who became like family to me, and over time PROPEL became a second home. I especially want to thank Drew and Kristin — all the guidance, encouragement, and care you showed throughout the years. The impact that you, PROPEL and everyone in it had on my life is something I will always carry with me, and I will forever be grateful for the family I found there."

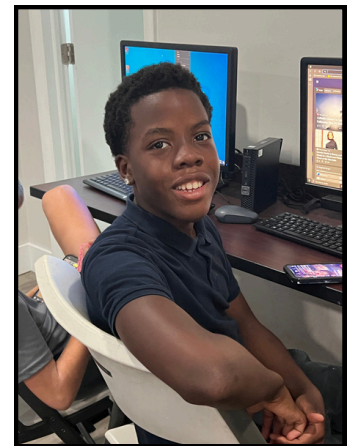

~Tristan Sejour, PROPEL Class of 2026

Go be great, Tristan. We will be cheering every single step!

But here is what makes Tristan's story even more powerful - it is not just his story. His younger brother Avery has been part of PROPEL for the past three years, growing in the same space, shaped by the same community, watching his older brother become who he became. Avery didn't just hear about what PROPEL can do. He watched it happen up close. And now as Tristan heads to USF, Avery steps into high school - not as a newcomer to this family but as someone who has already been living it.

The baton doesn't just get passed in the Sejour family. It gets carried together.

And the Sejours are not alone.

Avery Sejour - Future 9th Grader

Across our community, brothers and sisters, cousins and teammates have been walking through these doors - some following, some leading, some coming back to coach the ones behind them. This is what the PROPEL Circle looks like inside a family. And this year, with twenty graduates stepping forward, we have the privilege of celebrating eight families whose roots run deep in this community.

This is their moment.

The PROPEL Circle Runs in the Family

At PROPEL we talk about the Circle often. The way relationships loop back around. The way investment multiplies. The way people who were once poured into come back to pour into others. But nowhere is the PROPEL Circle more visible - more personal, more powerful - than in the families who have walked through these doors together.

This month we celebrate eight families with seniors stepping forward into their next chapter. They are not the only families woven into the fabric of this community - the Circle runs deeper and wider than any one page can hold - but this month, they get their moment. Because they have more than earned it.

The Adrien Family

Frahima Adrien graduates this year as a Viner Foundation Scholar heading to the University of North Florida to study Kinesiology... but her story at PROPEL is bigger than one student, one graduation or one scholarship.

Her brother Francklin has been part of PROPEL for the past three years, growing right alongside her and now steps into high school carrying everything this community has already planted in him. Their cousin Lordie Pierre has been with PROPEL since 7th grade and enters her junior year with her own story still beautifully unfolding. And their cousin Coach Angelina Charlot, Class of 2024, now studying Political Science and Law at Palm Beach State College - came through PROPEL as a student and came back as a Middle School Coach, pouring into the next generation with the same love and energy that was poured into her.

Four family members. Four different chapters of the same PROPEL story. All unfolding at the same time, in the same community, inside the same PROPEL Circle.

We are honored to know this family and proud to walk alongside every single one of them.

Francklin Adrien - Future 9th Grader

The Docteur Family

Jonathan & Stephanie Docteur

Gino came through PROPEL as part of the Class of 2020 - one of the early chapters of this family's story with us. Then came Jonathan, who crossed the stage at the University of Florida this spring with a degree in engineering. And now Stephanie.

Stephanie's story deserves its own moment - because Stephanie is not just a graduate. She is a PROPEL original. She came to us in 5th grade and by 7th grade was preparing home-cooked meals for her fellow PROPELIANS, showing a level of heart and maturity that stopped everyone around her in their tracks. She is heading to Palm Beach State College to study health sciences and biology - and she already knows exactly why:

"Growing up in a big family taught me that a meal is more than just food - it's care, comfort and connection. That lesson shaped my passion for feeding others and through PROPEL I am able to share the warmth of a meal to others in my community, ensuring everyone has a place at the table and enjoys a meal made with love."

~ Stephanie Docteur, PROPEL Class of 2026

Three siblings. Nearly a decade of Docteurs at PROPEL.

A youngest sister who came in at 5th grade and leaves having already fed, served and loved an entire community.

We cannot wait to see what she does with a degree in her hands.

The Circle Runs in the Family

The Florestal Family

If you want to understand what the PROPEL Circle looks like across time, look no further than the Florestal family.

It started with Kinsley. Class of 2017. He came through PROPEL, went on to the University of Florida, then Charles Drew PA School and is now a practicing Physician Assistant at UMass Memorial. Kinsley didn't just build a career... he built a blueprint. And he never stopped showing up. This spring he was at our 2nd Annual Pickleball Tournament cheering on the next generation. Earlier this year he was on ABC with Drew, telling the world what PROPEL means. That is who Kinsley is. That is what PROPEL does.

Lorvens, Kinsley, Mom, Asiana, Dad, James, Enica

Then came Lorvens, Class of 2021, Charleston Southern University. Then James, Class of 2024, now at Palm Beach State College and cousin Nedgie "Gigi" Aurlien, Class of 2024, now at the University of Central Florida.

And this year - Asaina. The youngest Florestal to cross the graduation stage, heading to college as a Frederick A. DeLuca Foundation Scholar with a fully funded Florida Prepaid College Plan. She didn't just follow in her brothers' footsteps. She followed in a legacy.

Nedgie "Gigi" Kinsley & James (2017)

But the Circle doesn't stop there. Enica Florestal is entering her senior year. One more Florestal still writing her PROPEL story.

Five siblings and counting. One family. One Circle that has been turning for nearly a decade and shows absolutely no signs of stopping.

This is not coincidence. This is culture.

Enica and Asiana Florestal

The Gayle Family

Omar Gayle is many things. A wrestler. A graduate. A young man heading to Palm Beach State College to study nursing. But ask anyone who knows him and they will tell you the same thing — at the center of everything Omar does is his brother Sam.

Sam inspires Omar in ways that go deeper than words. He is the reason Omar chose nursing. The reason Omar shows up with a quiet strength and a level of compassion that you don't often see in someone so young. Omar doesn't just look out for his brother... he lets that love shape his entire purpose.

Sam enters his sophomore year this fall, and something tells us he already knows exactly how extraordinary his big brother is.

Omar... go take care of people. You were made for it!

The Circle of love in this family runs deeper than most.

Sam

The Joseph Family

Maryanne Joseph came through PROPEL as part of the Class of 2021 and went on to Florida Atlantic University. Phaniola followed as part of the Class of 2023 heading to the University of South Florida.

And this year Chelsey, a James and Marta Batmasian Foundation Scholar crosses the stage heading to Florida Gulf Coast University to study Civil Engineering.

Chelsey Joseph is going to build things. Literally and figuratively. And she is doing it standing on the foundation her sisters laid before her.

The Joseph Circle isn't finished yet. Joanie is entering high school this year and baby sister Jasmine is stepping into 7th grade — the next chapters of a family legacy that has been growing inside PROPEL for years.

Five sisters. Five PROPELIANS. One family that keeps showing up and keeps reaching higher.

The Circle is strong in this family. Very strong.

The McLaughlin Family

Jaylay and Aniyah McLaughlin

Jayla McLaughlin crosses the graduation stage heading to Palm Beach State College to study nursing, and she does it knowing her little sister Aniyah has been right here beside her through much of the journey.

Aniyah has been part of PROPEL since 6th grade, building her own story inside this community one year at a time. She enters her junior year with two more years of her own PROPEL chapter still ahead of her.

Jayla blazed the trail. Aniyah is running it with her own stride.

We are proud of them both and we cannot wait to see where Aniyah's path leads when her own graduation day arrives.

The Circle continues.

The St. Fleur Family

The St. Fleur family story begins in 2018... with Garcendy, part of one of the most memorable groups in PROPEL history. The Fab Five. Sponsored by Office Depot, Under Armor and highlighted on The Morning Blend, Garcendy and his crew showed the community what PROPEL students were capable of when given real opportunity and real support.

From there Garcendy landed an internship through PROPEL that turned into a full career in accounting. Today he is not just employed - he is a proud homeowner. That is the full picture of what PROPEL set out to do from day one.

Then came Encoucea, Class of 2020, following her brother to Florida Atlantic University. And now John - heading into HVAC and welding as a Carl Angus DeSantis Foundation Scholar, carrying that same St. Fleur determination in a completely different Pathway.

Three siblings. Four cousins who have passed through these halls over the years. One family whose fingerprints are all over the history of this program.

From the Morning Blend to the trades - the St. Fleur Circle runs deep.

The Circle Keeps Going... Alumni on the Move

At PROPEL we have always believed that our role doesn't end at graduation. We don't just walk with students through middle school and high school, we walk with them along their entire Pathway. Into college. Into careers. Into the moments that matter most. We show up to celebrate every step, every milestone and every victory - big and small - because that is what family does. And these PROPELIANS are giving us plenty to celebrate.

Meet Dr. Camisha Saint-Preux - Class of 2017, FAMU 2023 and Duke University 2026

Some achievements stop you in your tracks. This is one of them.

Dr. Camisha Saint-Preux - 2026

Camisha Saint-Preux came to PROPEL as a student alongside her brother Rolex, Class of 2019, who is currently making his own mark at Columbia University.

But this moment belongs to Camisha. She just graduated from Duke University with her Doctorate in Occupational Therapy - and she didn't just earn a degree. She stepped into a calling.

Rolex Saint-Preux

According to the American Journal of Occupational Therapy, only 5.49% of occupational therapists in the United States are Black. Dr. Saint-Preux knows exactly what that means — and exactly what she intends to do about it. In her own words:

"I didn't choose Occupational Therapy, it literally chose me. God said I was needed in this field. God said He needs me in this field to care and nurture my people but most importantly His children. God called me to do His work through Occupational Therapy and Hip Hop — The Healing Cypher.

I am beyond blessed and so excited to be a part of this 5.49% of Black practitioners serving our community and our people in this field. I can't wait to see how I will impact the field and advocate for those who look like me. So don't mind me man, I'm just doin' my job."

~ Dr. Camisha Saint-Preux, OTD, Duke University

Micaiah "MJ" Joseph - Class of 2021, Florida Atlantic University 2026, Sociology

Micaiah MJ Joseph - 2026

MJ's journey is the PROPEL Circle in its fullest form. She came to us as a student in high school, grew into a Middle School Coach, stepped into the role of Program Director and now carries everything PROPEL built in her into her work at the Department of Children and Families - showing up every day for kids and families who need someone in their corner.

From PROPELIAN to leader to professional advocate. MJ didn't just come through PROPEL. She helped build it. And now she is building something bigger. We could not be more proud.
